FRESHWATER IMAGES LAUNCHES NEW WEB SITE

Commercial photography company launches site focused on corporate marketing needs

DENVER, COLO. (February 9, 2010) – Freshwater Images, a Denver-based commercial photography company, has launched its new Web site: www.FreshwaterImages.com.

Freshwater Images' Web site provides visitors with a robust portfolio for review and a regularly updated photo blog, which enables viewers to follow along as the company documents events, conventions and organizations throughout the Rocky Mountain West.

"I am thrilled to launch Freshwater Images' site and provide our clients with an online source to view our services and work," said Nathan W. Armes, Freshwater Images founder and owner. "I am also excited about our blog and the opportunity it offers our clients and the general public to keep an eye on some of the regional happenings and what Freshwater Images is working on."

For more information about Freshwater Images' Web site launch, visit www.FreshwaterImages.com or call 303-478-8484.

About Freshwater Images

A proponent of custom imagery for commercial use, Freshwater Images works with small to large companies and nonprofits to document their events and conventions, and develop product and service imagery for marketing purposes. The photography company also works with public relations and marketing firms to document their clients' events and projects for photo distribution to the media.
